Rausch Has Articles Published

Erwin Rausch, adjunct in the Department of Management, has recently published two articles which represent another step in a continuing effort to present increasingly progressive reader- and learner friendly versions of management-and leadership-decision guidelines.

Since the original publication, the subject has been the discussion in many journal articles and of presentations at academic and practitioner conferences, as well as in management development programs.

Most recently, Rausch’s Leadership in Management Education and Development: Criteria for Quality Decisions has appeared in the European Business Review, Vol. 19, No. 3, 2007. It shows how a focus on decisions can enhance management education and especially those aspects that pertain to their impact on stakeholders.
