Calling all future CEOs, innovators, investors and entrepreneurs!

Do you dream about starting a business that is profitable and makes a difference?

Join us for an exciting, informative and hands-on summer pre-college program. Social entrepreneurship (i.e., being a “changemaker”) is about creating goods and services that sell while also making a valuable social impact.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The program is led by Kean's world-class faculty. Participants will learn how to start up an enterprise and will work in teams to simulate all the stages of business development and launch.

The program will cover the following topics:

Core Competencies

Develop and practice soft skills in:

- Teamwork
- Public speaking
- Problem solving
- Time management

Financial Technology

Get hands-on experience using financial technologies, including the Bloomberg Terminal and other professional-grade financial decision-making software.

Business Analytics

Gain experience wrangling the Internet's endless streams of data into information used to guide business decision-making.

Social Media Marketing

Learn from experts about how today's marketing technologies are shaping consumer preferences and opinions. Learn how to use social media to build brand awareness.

Quality Management

Explore how quality drives cost for business. Participants earn their Six Sigma white belt by learning to use the tools businesses leverage to manage the quality of their products and services.

Supply Chain Management

Today's global supply chains bring products and services to where they are needed. Through computer and live-action simulations, participants will experience making the decisions necessary to keep supply chains running.
